An Opportunity to Help Someone in Need

Did you know that the gift of life can also be the gift of hope to a patient in need?

After your baby is born, the placenta (or afterbirth) is usually discarded as medical waste, but it can actually provide a precious gift.

Doctors can treat hard-to-heal wounds such as diabetic foot ulcers, venous leg ulcers, and burns using placental-based tissue as a protective barrier. This tissue can also be used in surgical procedures.

It is vital that you donate.

The placenta is essential for a healthy pregnancy; protecting and supporting the development of your baby over the course of gestation.

The composition of this tissue contains unique properties, unlike any other, and it can be repurposed as a protective barrier to support the healing cascade. Your donation is the foundation of advanced products used to improve the quality of life for many patients in need.

Donating is Easy and Poses No Risk For You or Your Baby.

Mothers who deliver via Caesarean section with a participating physician, are eligible to participate in our placental donation program. Donation is:

SAFE. There is no risk. The health of you and your baby remains top priority, as the placenta is recovered.

SIMPLE. Once you formally consent, you only need to answer a series of questions regarding your medical and social history, similar to those answered when giving blood.

PAINLESS. No extra procedures are required. A routine blood test will be conducted simultaneously with your admission blood draw on the day of surgery.

FREE. There is no cost to you or your family.

Ask your doctor about donating your placenta. If your physician is not a participating member and you wish to donate, please have your doctor's office reach out to us for additional details. Our contact information can be found on the back panel.
